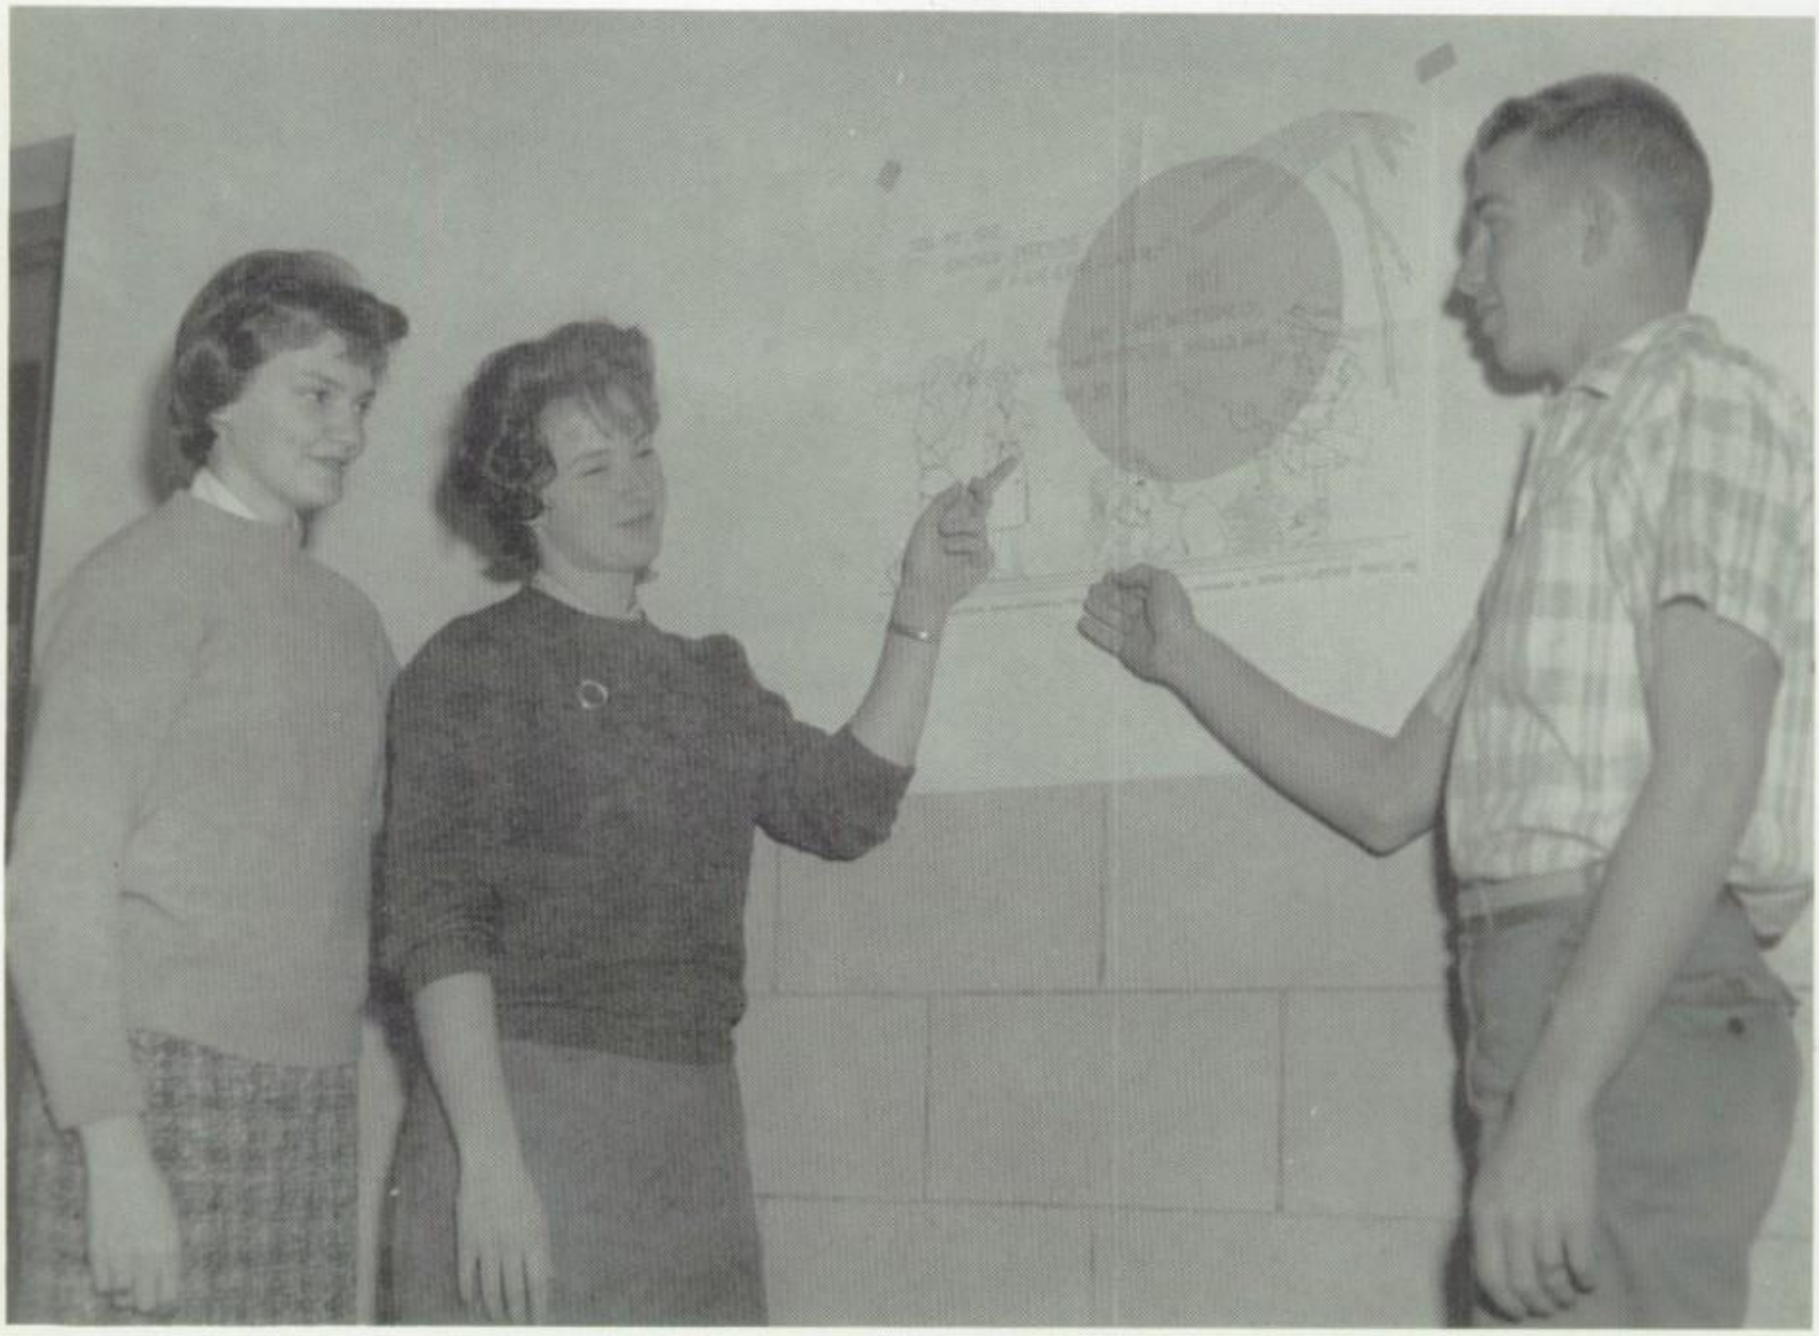
BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE

"Rome was not built in a day," and neither are our lives. The careful instruction and learning throughout our school years merely lay a foundation on which we build in later years. Yet, as the foundation of a house determines its strength, the experiences we encounter during our school years become the most important experiences of our lives. The way we solve our problems, the way we meet our responsibilities, and the way we share our joys build the foundation that is either weak or strong.

Within the pages of this book we have stored the memories of the joys and sorrows that have helped build our lives. Since we want you, too, to have a share in our lives, won't you read with us through the following pages?



Celia Nakoski, Assistant Editor; Pat Long, Editor-in-Chief; Bruce Neckers, Business Manager.

The Big Wheel at the Bus Garage

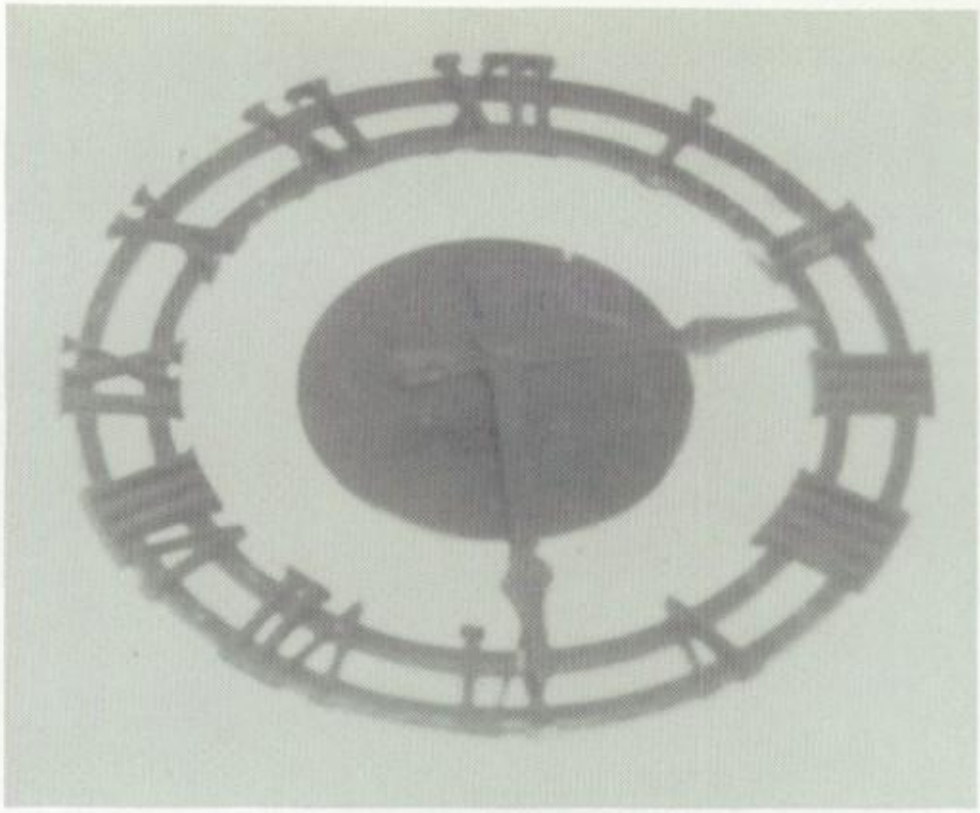
Who can measure progress without including those who so faithfully serve for the satisfaction of serving rather than for the satisfaction of being rewarded? Lehman Green, who has served Clymer Central School as a bus driver and mechanic for the past 25 years, has been such a steward.

We, the Class of 1961, realizing that our yearly activities would have been considerably limited if we hadn't had the transportation facilities of buses, dedicate our SPOTLIGHT to you, Mr. Green. Without your devotion, both our academic and social life would have suffered.

DEDICATION



MOMENTS TO REMEMBER

In our library, on the wall overlooking all the tables, is a clock. Day after day, year after year, it has been faithful, ticking away the hours and seeing many students come and go. It has watched the nervous freshman grow and mature into the confident senior, ready to face the world.

Yes, the hands move around the clock, as always; but each click holds a memory for us, as it will, someday, for you.

A building without a strong foundation is useless. The same is true of education and character. One cannot stand, strong and unfaltering, against the storms of life if he has not been prepared for them.

Our Board of Education is the foreman. It watches over, directs, and corrects the work of our faculty, the constructors. Day by day they toil, carefully building, brick by brick until our foundation is strong and enduring.

Outside, the building is nearly completed; and as we step from the elementary grades to high school, we imagine that our foundation is reaching completion also. In the grades, the cornerstones are laid, and the cement, so to speak, is poured into the forms.

High school builds onward and upward. It is only the beginning. What we learn is very useful in later life, but every day we live, we build still onward and, we hope, upward.

AROUND

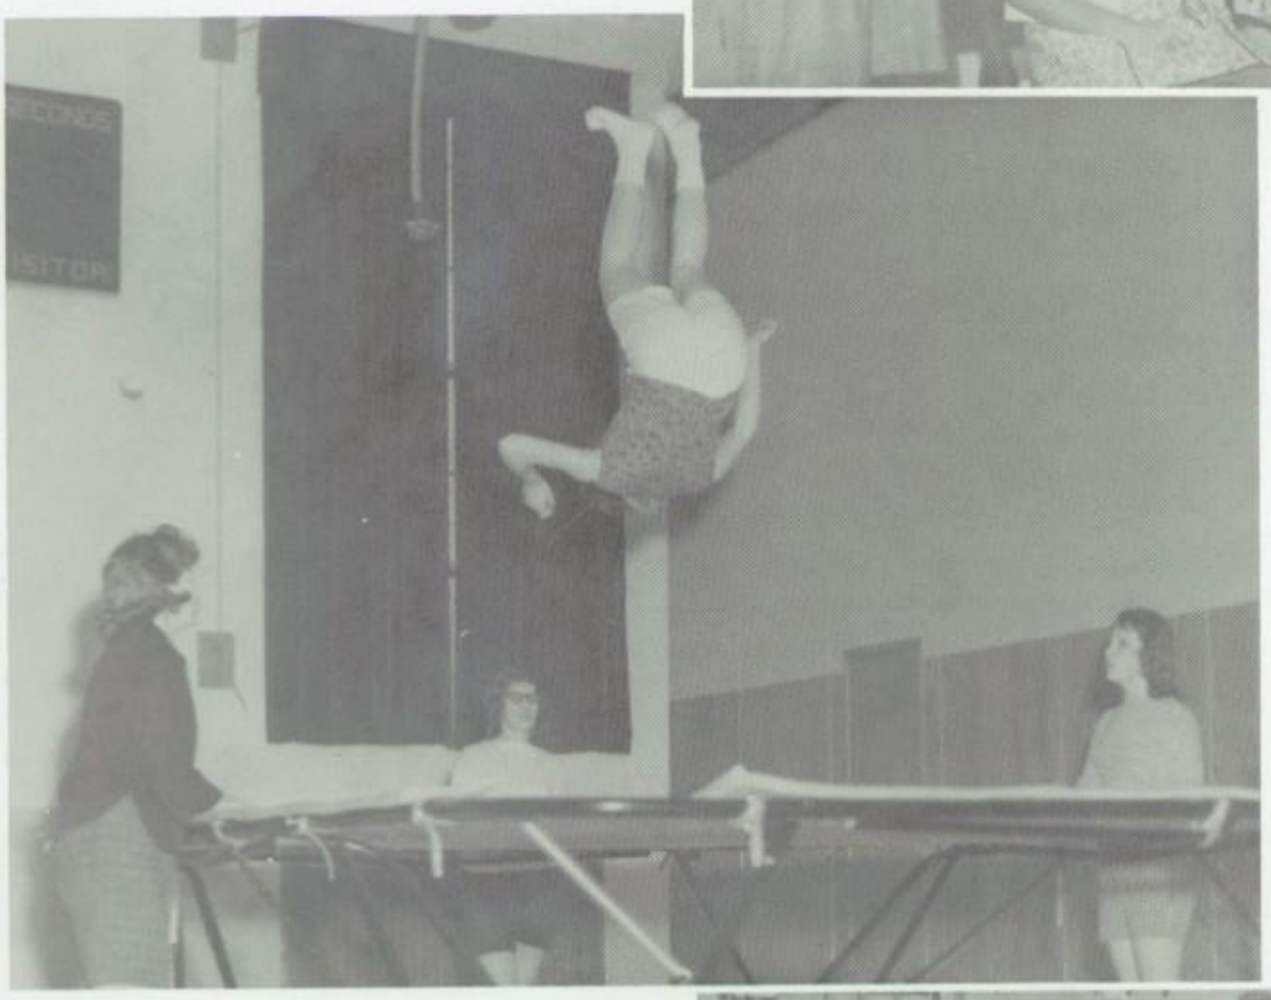
During an assembly in the cafeteria, Mr. Moses presented the magazine sales awards. Ken Way received a certificate, trophy, and pin for selling over one hundred dollars' worth of magazines. Maybe the best award of all was the ten dollars he won for his achievement.

To practice some of their homemaking skills, the eighth grade girls held a tea one afternoon for the teachers.

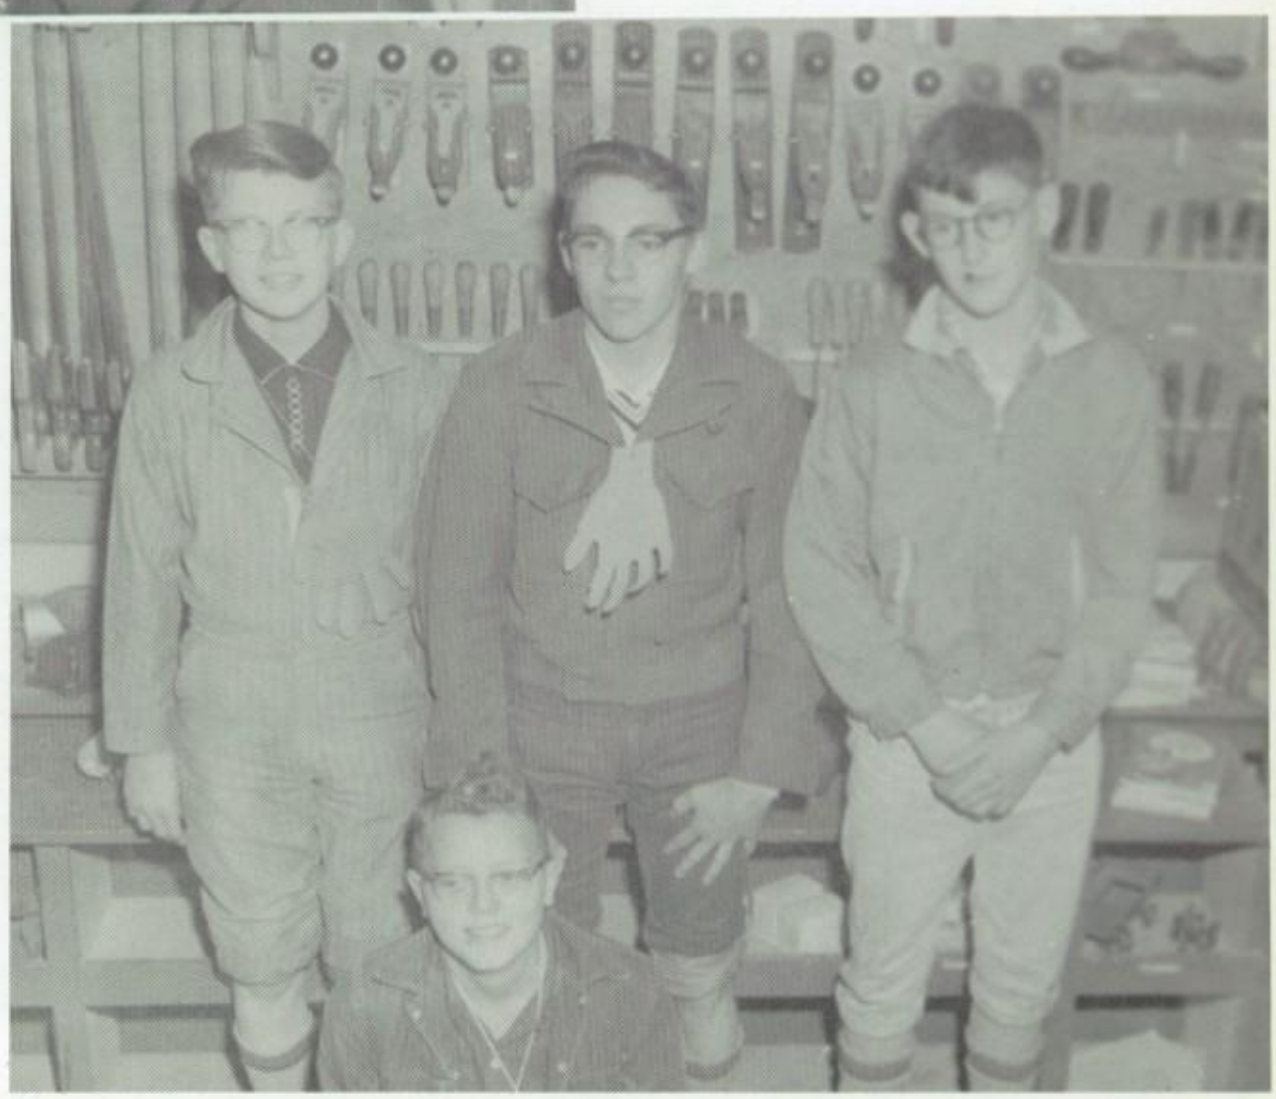
One Saturday early this fall turned out to be a busy, soapy day for the Seniors. Since Gail Thompson let us take over his Esso station, we were in the gas station business for a day. Even if we hadn't gotten any profits, the fun of working together was worth the effort.

SCHOOL

This rolling-pin wielding group are the new members of Future Homemakers of America carrying out their initiation duties.



There's nothing like a few bounces on the "tramp" to make gym class more fun.



These four martyred-looking boys are the new members of Future Farmers of America during initiation.

Directed by Miss Bryson and Laura Goodwill.

The Kwimpers from Cranberry County, New Jersey, become stranded on a road that ends "just nowhere;" then H. Arthur King enters the picture. Pop gets his dander up and decides to stake a claim to the land and "whomps up a law" to keep King off the trail until they get settled.

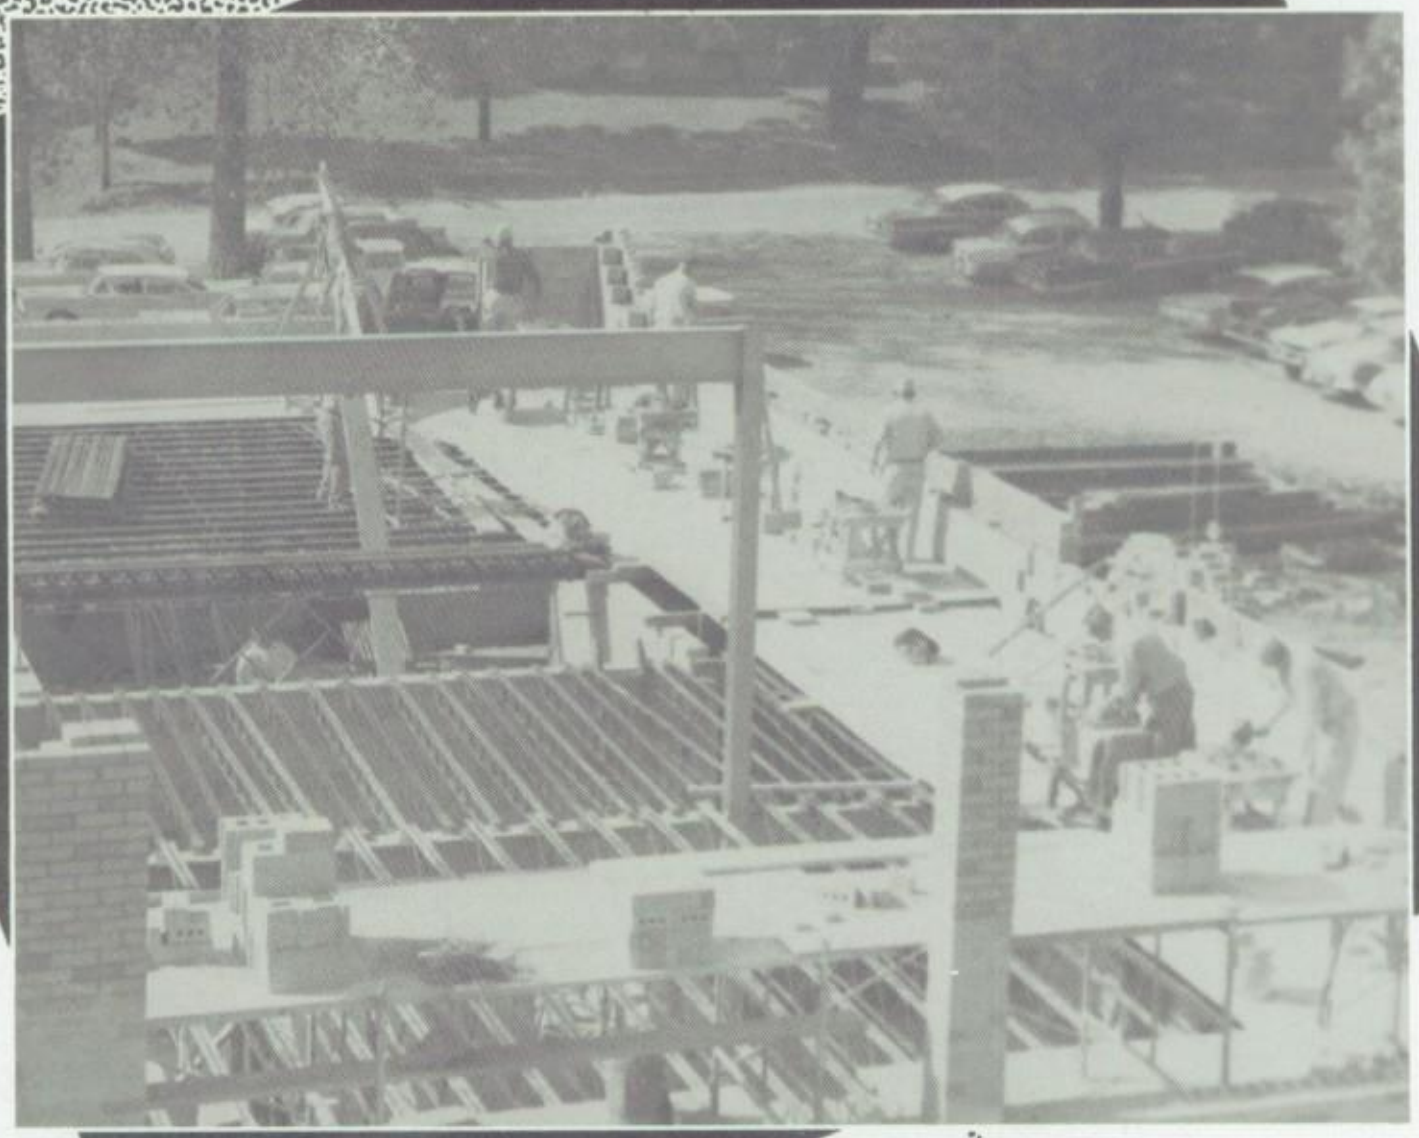
In the meantime, The Queen Bee moves in next door with her gambling casino and gangster friends. They try to trick Toby into gambling away Kwimperville; he outsmarts them by being dumb and honest.

Poor Holly, during all this time, has been trying to capture the affections of Toby, which she finally does after all the dust settles from the departing gambling casino.

They marry and settle down, and all looks as if peace has come to Kwimperville, until a tax collector brings them up to date on what they owe Uncle Sam.

PIONEER GO HOME!

The Queen Bee wins that point.



As we look on the outside, we observe the construction men who are diligently working on our building. Much has been accomplished since they began work last spring.

However, on the inside there is much the same going on in our "Classes." Each class is a brick in our ascending foundation. Each teacher is a construction worker who lays the bricks in place with learning and makes it firm with wisdom.

CLASSES

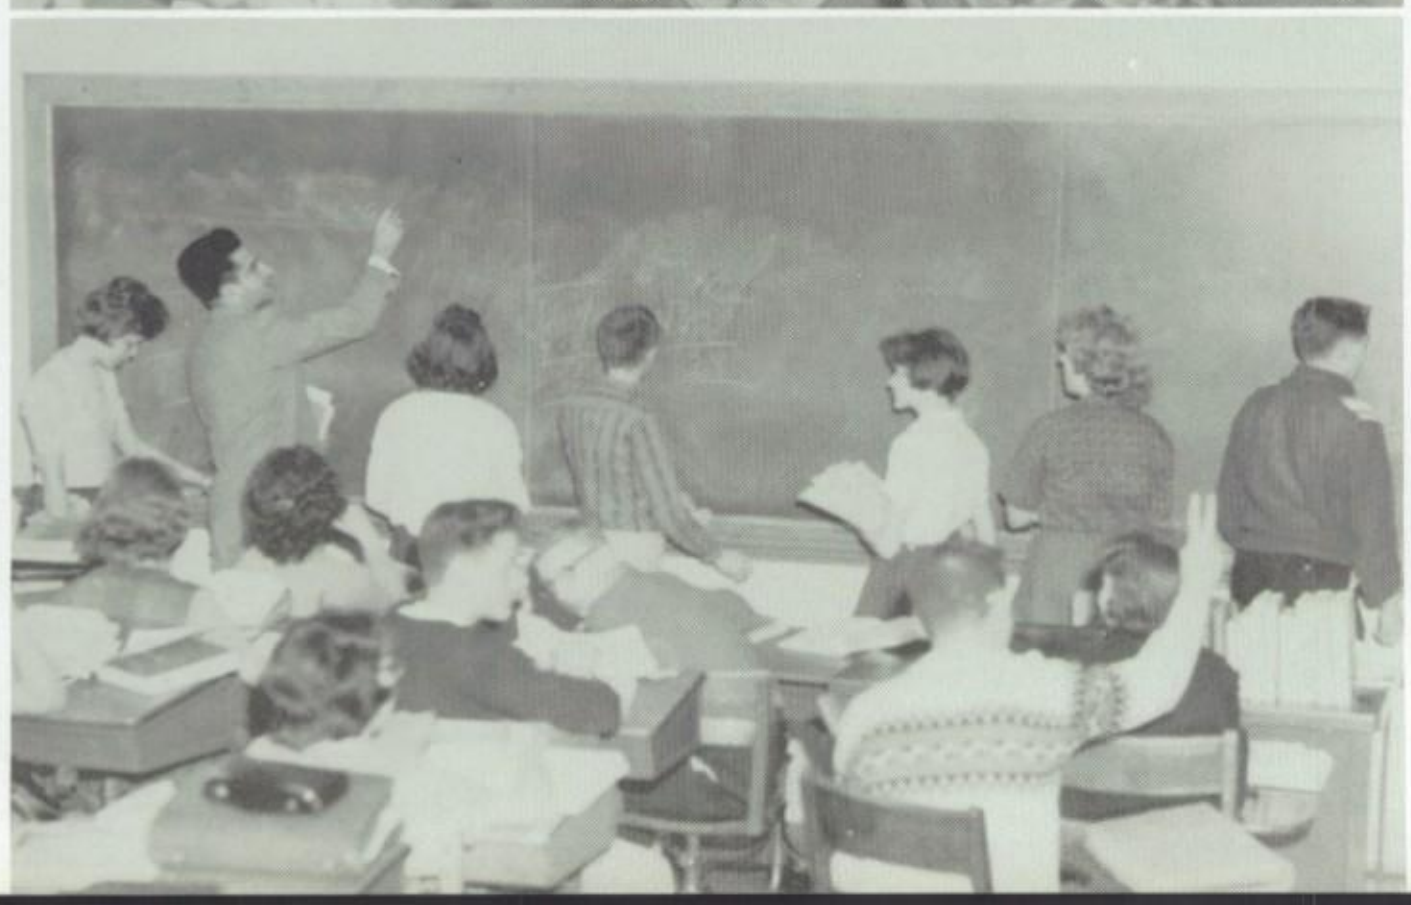
Happy Hurley hints to his hale and hearty Health Hoard how to "H-h-h-h-!"

"Typing in Transcription 'tis total travail," trills Mr. Moses.

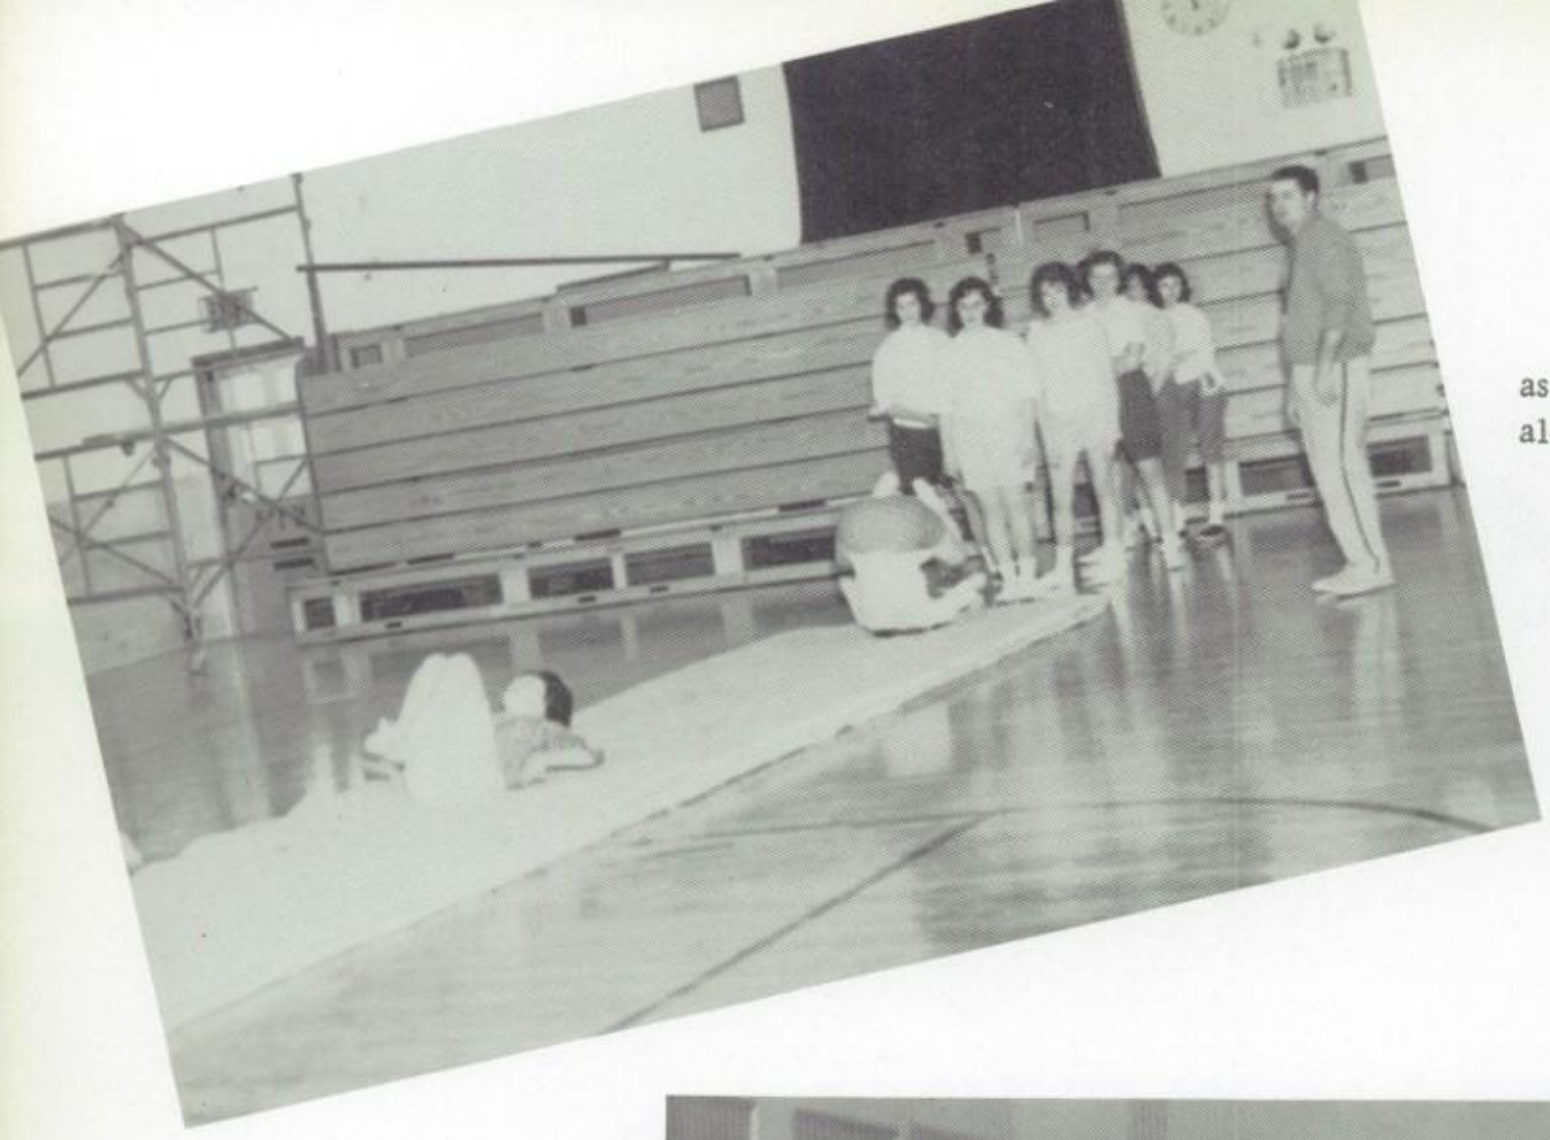
Miss Bryson prescribes to Home-making pupils the patterns of posture, poise and personality.

The smiling French I pupils and Mrs. Beuter pause during la classe for the camera.

Mr. Bensink's Agriculture II class learns what makes motors tick.

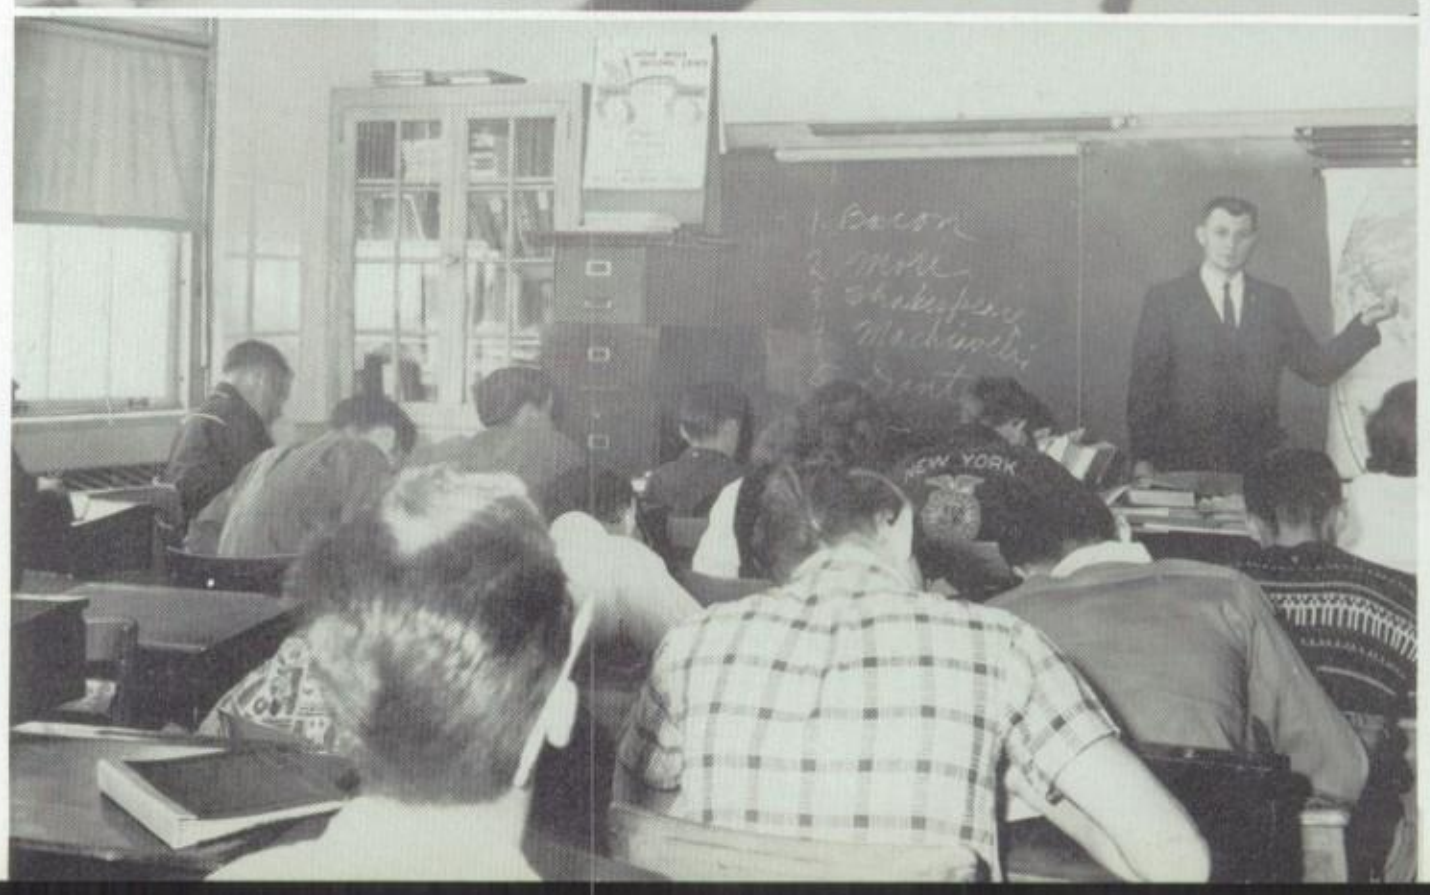


Mr. Moses and his Introduction to Business class go over yesterday's homework.



Mr. Hurley observes as his "caissons" go rolling along.

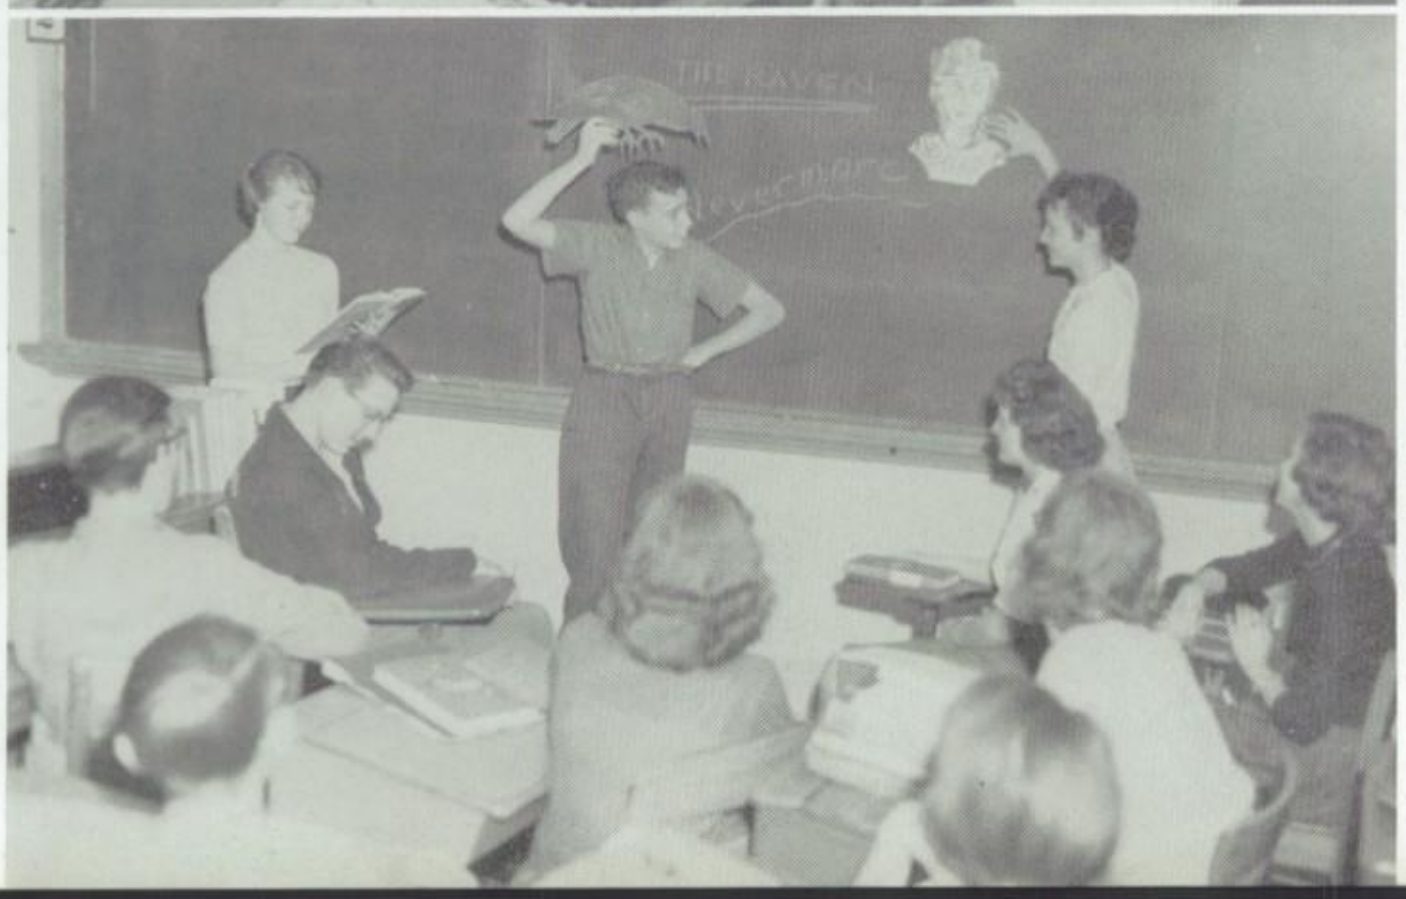
"It may be Monday morning, but these kids are going to learn their science!" says Mr. Adams.



Through Mr. Burgard, the World History students learn the difference between Boston and Bacon.

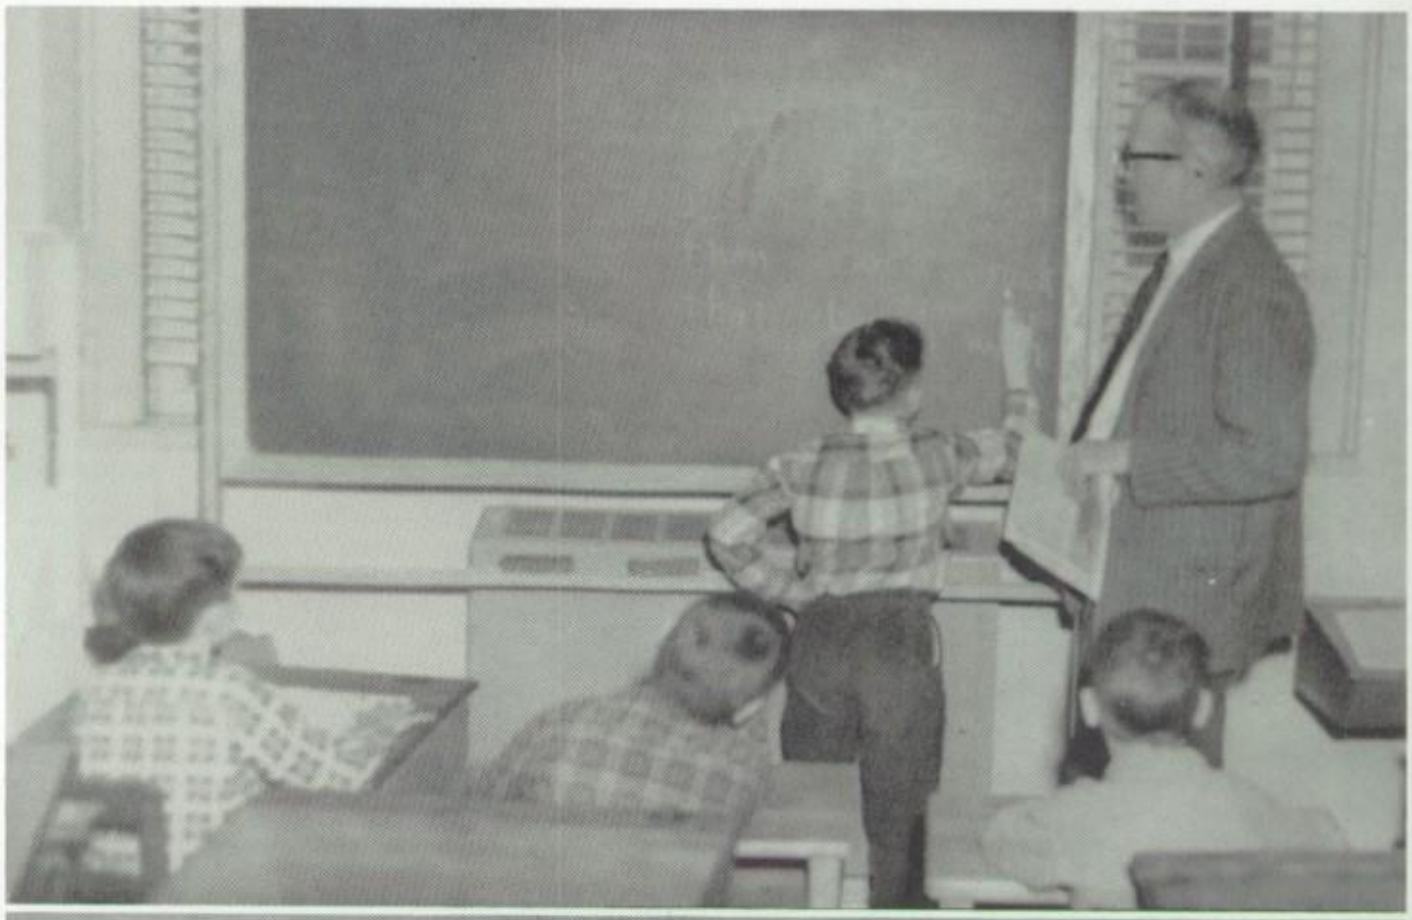
Strange sounds, sights and smells come from the physics lab supervised by Mr. Henry.

In adult education, Mrs. Mathews teaches pupils already out of high school how to sew.



"Quoth the raven, 'Nevermore,'" is one day's topic for discussion in Mrs. Ricker's English I class.

"This will be our new guidance office," explains Mr. TeWinkle to onlooking Seniors.



Mr. Shevory surveys his remedial reading classes.

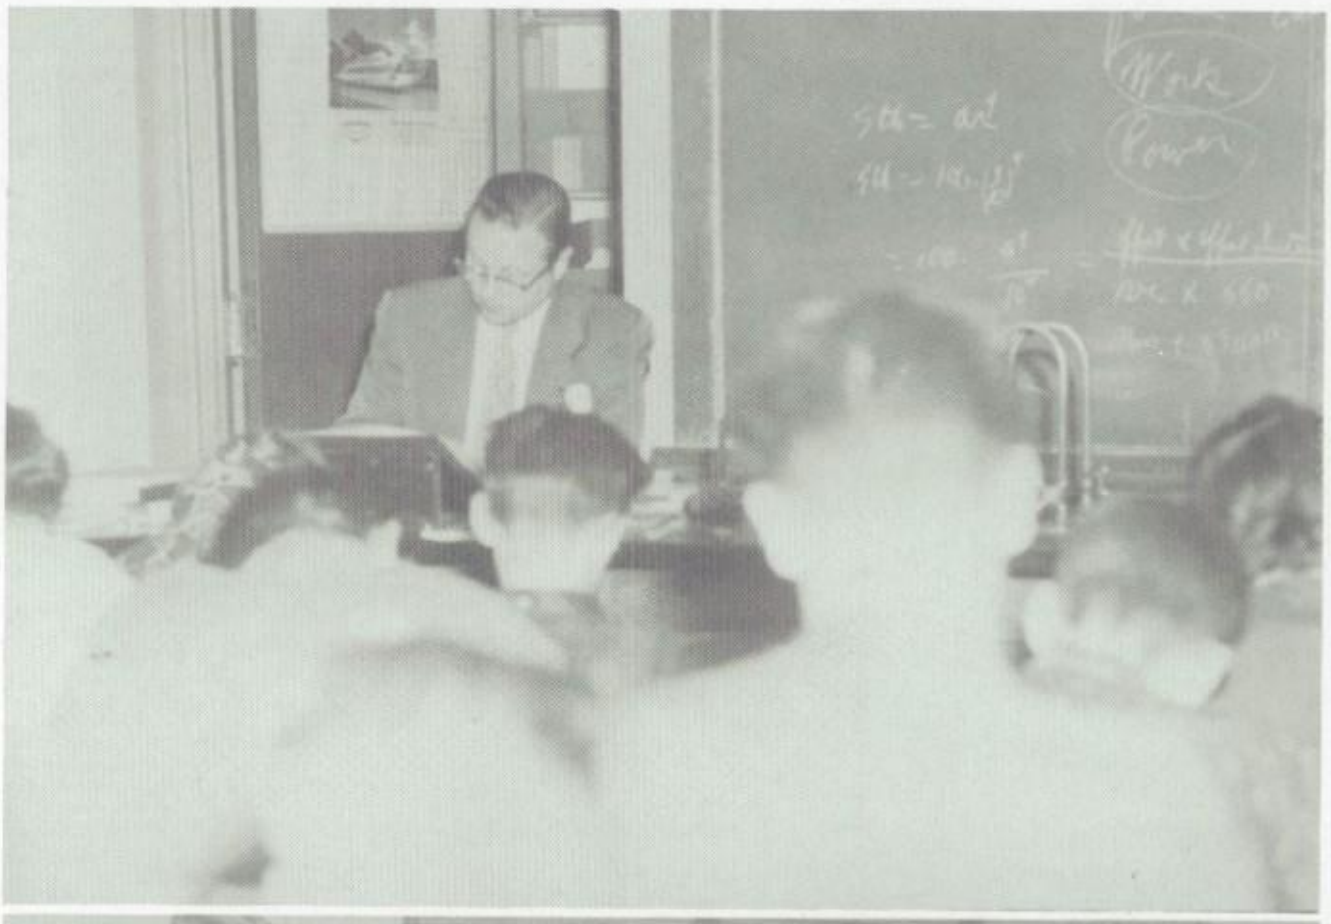
Religious Education instructors lead their flocks closer to their Maker.

Mr. McAllister trains students, sixteen or over, to be safe drivers.

Coach Brumagin gives his biology class a lesson in anatomy--straight from the heart.

On the Ides of March, Mr. Cornell's Latin students give their impressions of ancient Romans.

Under Mr. Snyder's watchful eye, the Mechanical Drawing students sketch and scribble.



Mr. Henry's geometry class studies with shades of Algebra II and physics on the board.

A hollow stick of wood garnished with steel can produce lovely sounds with Mr. Skowyra's direction.

As the worker changes jobs now and then, first laying bricks, then mixing mortar, so we do in our school work. First we work in our regular classes, such as mathematics or history. Then we switch to something completely different, such as band or chorus, or maybe a May-Day Exercise. In us as in the workers, it relieves the tension which has accumulated in the previous work, and we are relaxed.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY INDUCTION

Early in December, new members were inducted into the National Honor Society. "Swami" Tom Smith gave clues about the new inductees to an assembly of the high school. When he looked into his crystal ball, Tom could tell some of the past achievements of the newcomers as well as their very immediate future as members in the society.

SENIOR CLASS CHRISTMAS PARTY

This year the Senior Class celebrated Christmas during the last class meeting before vacation. Several weeks before the party, names were drawn and shopping for fifty-cent gag gifts was begun. After the gifts were exchanged along with much laughter, the class settled down somewhat for pop and cookies.

SOPHOMORE ICE CREAM PARTY

The sophomore girls were the happy recipients of an ice cream party from the seniors. This party was promised to the homeroom in high school which bought the greatest percentage of yearbooks. Since the girls got all the ice cream they could eat, the seniors were just glad that the sophomore girls won rather than the sophomore boys.

SMILES AND SONGS

The thirty-two members gather every Tuesday and Thursday to bring their melodious sounds to the halls during the seventh period. Songs have ranged from Negro spirituals like "Soon Ah Will Be Done" to the music from the hit show "The Sound of Music."

Because of the lack of performance space, the group put on a Christmas concert over the public address system. A spring concert was also on the agenda for the new gym.

Along with learning facts about breathing and tone, the chorus members learn to realize the value of music from various fields and gain a knowledge of notes and key signatures. This group is under the direction of Mrs. Skowyra.

Chorus officers are:

Marcia Compton-President
Linda Gravink-Vice-President
Diane Holthouse-Treasurer

BRASS, REEDS, AND RHYTHM

A few minutes before the beginning of seventh period on Mondays and Wednesdays, there is a flutter of sheet music and the sound of scales from the wood-winds and trumpets while the band members are getting in position for another day. However, shortly after the ringing of the third bell, the confusion lessens, and we hear lilting melodies issue forth. Tunes a passer-by might hear are "When the Saints Go Marching In" or "Sinbad the Sailor."

In the band, students learn to play in a group. A few times throughout the year some of the more experienced band members try directing their fellow musicians.

Like the chorus, the band participated in the Christmas music over the public address system and the Spring Concert.

The officers of this organization under the direction of Mr. Skowyra are:

Pat Long-President
Kaye Wiggers-Vice-President
Donna Spence-Secretary

MINOR NOTES

This musical-looking group, the Elementary Band, is our future Senior Band.

The Clarinet Choir is in position just before their performance.

The members of the Faculty Club Band look engrossed in their musical attempt.

Though the foundation for education must be built first, strong bodies must also be developed to support the strong minds. Besides that, "all work and no play, makes Jack a dull boy." That is the reason we have Mr. Brumagin and Mr. Hurley. They help to build our bodies and make fast, in our minds, good sportmanship in all the sports we play.

Good sportsmanship, whether by the victor or the defeated, must always prevail. Though the Pirates didn't do so well last year, each mistake made someone a little bit wiser and will enable him to cope with the next season, a little better equipped to handle the situation unfalteringly.

BRAWN PLAYS FOOTBALL

This year the Clymer football scene changed. Instead of the usual six Pirates on the field, the number was eleven. Considering that this was the first year with the added number, the Pirates did well. Almost every Saturday afternoon this fall, shoulder pads, helmets and everything it takes to outfit a football player were in style.

If you come near the gym on the night of a game and hear sounds like "rah" and "yea" you can just bet the cheerleaders have something to do with them. School spirit is their joy, a job which all 14 girls thoroughly enjoy.

SUBSTITUTES--Linda Burmaster, Diane Houpt, Judy Emory, Cindy Ott.

MAJORETTES

This fall the majorettes' main activity was twirling at the home football games. During the winter the girls kept busy practicing for a competitive meet at Southwestern Central School on April 8.

The substitutes at right are Shirley Willink and Julie Hodge.

These beginners, also under the direction of Mrs. Tarbell, are our future twirlers. They meet every Thursday to learn and practice new routines. The ages of the girls in this group range from seven to thirteen.

FIRST ROW: Robert Jaggi, Marc Griffeth, David Beckerink, James Humphrey, Robert LaCross, Richard Applebee.

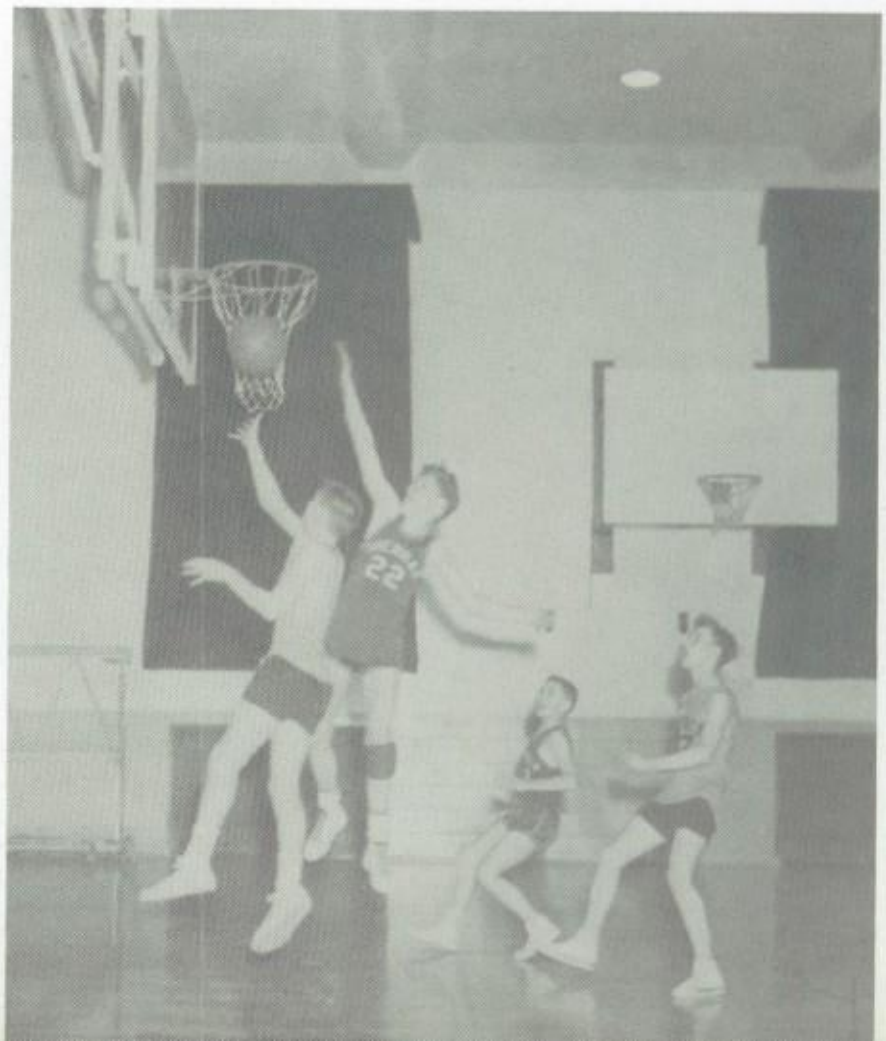
GET THAT BALL



Every foundation has to start somewhere. In the case of a building, the workers construct molds and pour cement into them. The teachers in the lower grades have a similar job. In the lower grades the mold, into which the cement of knowledge is poured, is constructed in our minds. This gives the high school something to build on.

GRADES OBSERVE SPECIAL DAYS

An Indian ceremony is pantomimed for the fascinated spectators in Mrs. Carlson's fourth grade.

Merry Christmas in many languages is an interesting topic for these sixth graders in Mrs. Peterson's room.

Do you recognize these prize winners in the Halloween contest?

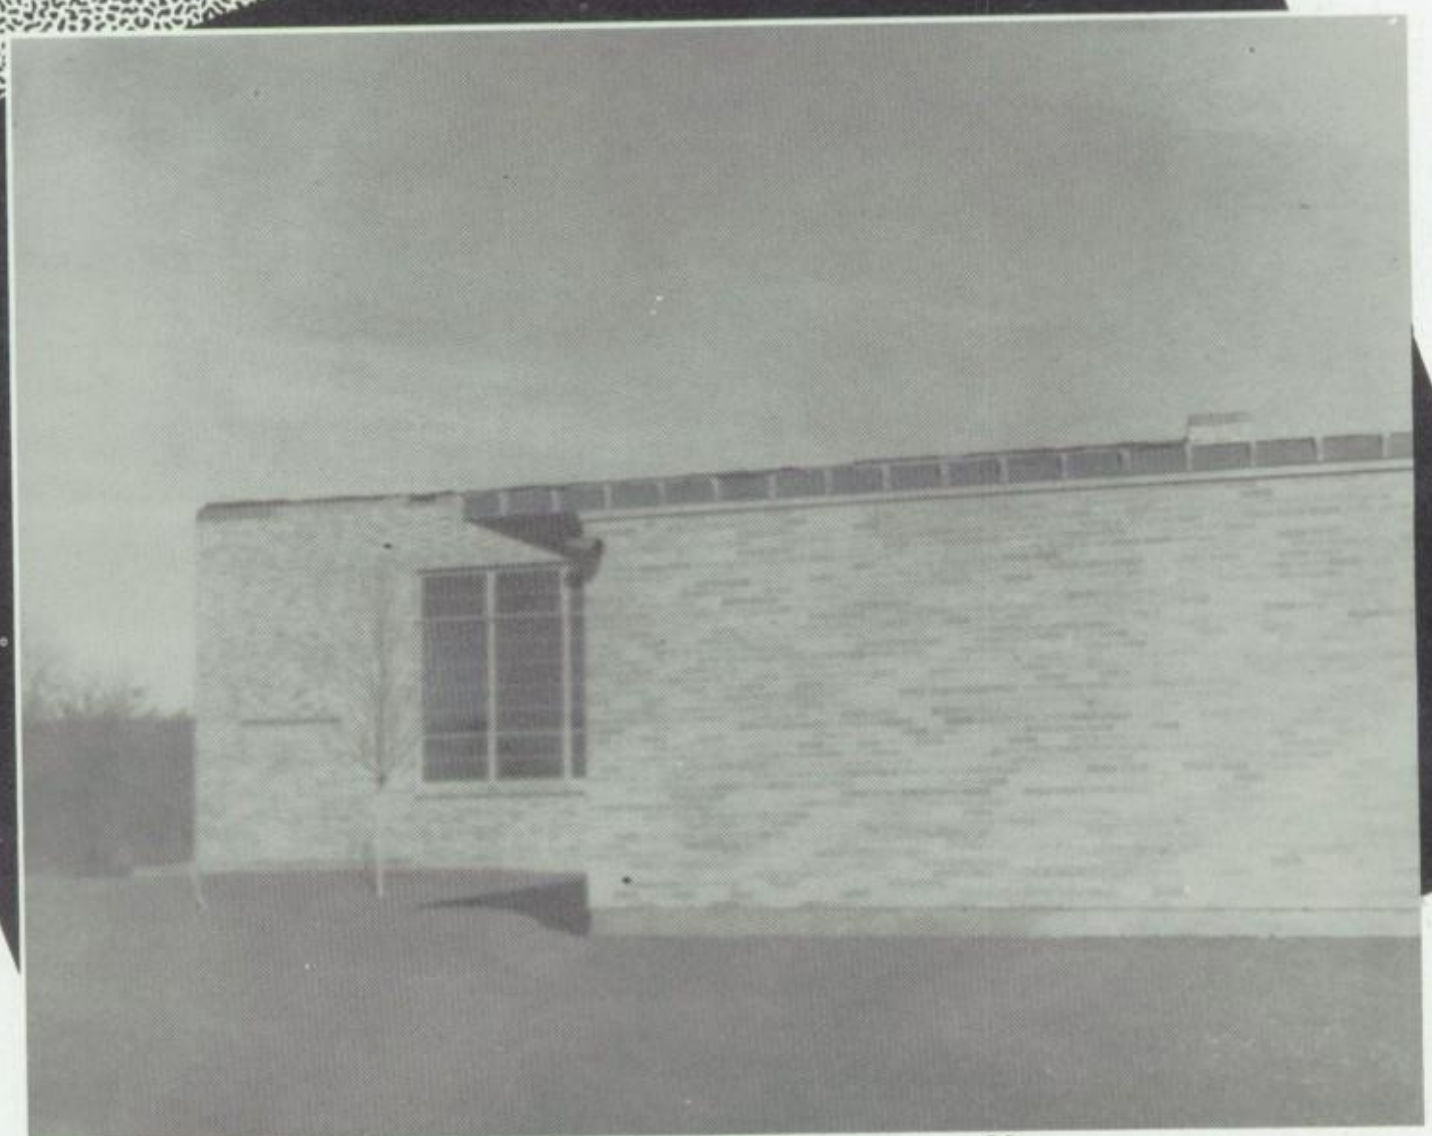
Mailing and receiving valentines in Miss Gifford's fourth grade room takes up several happy hours on Valentine's Day.

GRADES WORK AND PLAY

Third graders in Miss Gibbs' room pause during their Food Party for a picture.

Mrs. Stryker's Third grade show off their newly made sailboats.

Pupils in Mrs. Lookenhouse's sixth grade show scenes from books they have read.



Just as the school needed money to enlarge our building, we, the Class of '61, needed money to finance our yearbook. Though the tax payers' names aren't listed for all to see, we have recorded our advertisers on the following pages.

We want to express our deep gratitude to them. Won't you look them over?
